Production conventions

Reporter reference. Curly dark-brown hair with substantial volume, large black square glasses, rust-red blazer, cream blouse, spiral notepad, silver handheld microphone. Mature, skeptical, expressive face; not glamorous, not resembling any recognizable person. The cover and pages 5 to 11 are on model. Pages 2 and 12 drift toward short, straighter hair and should be regenerated against the sheet.

Lettering. All caps. Yellow rectangular caption boxes for narration, white balloons for speech, a red-on-yellow title banner across the top of each story page. Page 3's banner is tinted blue to match its palette.

Recurring figures.

- The hard-hat worker appears on pages 4, 5, 7 and 11, a quiet second face alongside the reporter.
- The three billionaires are generic composites, never likenesses of real people. The fur-collar billionaire from the cover owns the bunker on page 11.
- The man in the striped-band fedora on page 12 nods to Tom Landry, the tract's main formal source.
- Page 9's preacher echoes the Sacred Ending preacher on page 2, holding a tablet instead of a Bible.

Crowds. Diverse and unстереotyped throughout, especially at the checkpoint on page 8.

Script notation. Each panel's art direction is followed by its lettering: CAPTION for narration boxes, a character name for speech.

Page 1: Cover

Operation: the spectacular accusation, in the voice of a tabloid and a 39¢ tract at once.

TOP BURST: A SHOCKING SPECIAL REPORT!

PRICE ROUNDEL: 39¢

TITLE: DO TECH BILLIONAIRES WANT THE WORLD TO BURN?

BURST, RIGHT: THE SECRET FUTURE THEY'RE BUILDING WITHOUT YOU!

Art. Three billionaire composites rise above a burning, flooding Earth. Left, a silver-haired man in a suit holding a toy rocket aloft. Centre, a curly-haired man in tinted glasses and a black turtleneck lifting a glowing circuit globe. Right, a bald man in a fur-collar coat and tinted glasses swinging open a vault door onto a lit bunker lounge. Below, a drowned city in flames; the reporter in the foreground looks up in alarm, microphone and notepad in hand.

Insets.

- Left: a data center under transmission pylons at dusk. Label: THE AI POWER GRAB!
- Right: a rocket leaving a burning Earth toward the moon. Label: ROCKETS!
- Lower right: a walled hilltop compound with crowds pressed against the fence. Label: BUNKERS!

Operation: name the coalition and show that its members disagree about everything except what they need.

Panel 1 (wide). The reporter before a wall map of the world with three diverging arrows: red curving left, blue straight up, green curving right.

REPORTER: THE ALLIANCE DOESN'T SHARE ONE DREAM.

Panel 2. Label: THE TECH EXIT. An executive in profile; behind him a rocket on its gantry and a domed city on a cliff.

EXECUTIVE: BUILD A NEW WORLD FOR THE FEW.

Panel 3. Label: THE SACRED ENDING. A preacher with a Bible, arm raised to a storm sky over a burning skyline.

PREACHER: THE DISASTER PROVES THE STORY.

Panel 4 (wide). Label: THE FORTRESS. An officer in a green peaked cap before a long wall with watchtowers; a crowd stands below it.

OFFICER: SAVE OURSELVES. CAST OUT THE REST.

Panel 5 (wide). The three men shake hands over plans labeled POWER, LAND and DATA. The reporter watches from the right.

REPORTER: THEIR BELIEFS CONFLICT. THEIR PERMISSIONS CONVERGE.

Panel 6 (wide). The reporter walks through a busy, diverse street crowd: workers, families, children.

REPORTER: EACH ROAD TURNS A COMMON FUTURE INTO SELECTIVE SURVIVAL.

Fix: regenerate the reporter against the reference sheet.

Hand-off: a page break into silence and deep water.

Page 3: When the Whales Return

Operation: the hidden second ending. The return isn't a miracle. It's evidence that many coordinated repairs have actually happened.

Reporter. Absent. This is the only page with nobody reporting, because the repairs no longer need a witness.

Palette. Deep blues and greens, filtered light, no fire colors anywhere.

Panel 1 (wide). Underwater. A humpback and her calf cross a blue corridor marked by dotted lines on the seafloor. Two ships pass slowly at the surface above.

CAPTION: THEY DID NOT RETURN BECAUSE WE ESCAPED THE WORLD.

Panel 2. A hydrophone cable on the seabed, cut against a shore station where a technician in headphones points at a waveform.

CAPTION: THE SHIPPING LANES WENT QUIET ENOUGH TO HEAR.

TECHNICIAN: THERE. THAT'S HER.

Panel 3. Two divers cut away a ghost net on a reef; a sea turtle and a school of fish swim free.

CAPTION: SOMEONE HAULED OUT THE NETS NOBODY OWNED.

Panel 4. A regrowing kelp forest; a sea otter at the surface above, urchins held in check on the rocks below.

CAPTION: THE FOREST GREW BACK WHEN THE BALANCE DID.

Panel 5. Close on the whale's eye, calm.

CAPTION: THEY RETURNED BECAUSE WE CHANGED THE CONDITIONS OF RETURN.

Panel 6 (wide). The deep ocean in near-black blue. The whale's song travels as curved bands that break past the right border, the one place in the tract where the art leaves its frame.

CAPTION: AN ENDING IS NOT WHERE THE STORY STOPS. IT IS THE WORLD THAT CAN CONTINUE.

Hand-off: on a first read, back to the surface and the summit on page 4. On a second read, none: the loop closes here.

Page 4: The Future for Whom?

Operation: the coalition's shared material logic. The fantasy is far away; the permits are signed now.

Panel 1. The reporter outside a glass summit hall hung with national flags; limousines and a red carpet.

CAPTION: THEY PROMISED A FUTURE FOR EVERYONE.

Panel 2. A silver-haired speaker at a podium; behind him a rocket in a spotlight and a glowing circuit globe.

SPEAKER: WE'LL OUTRUN EVERY LIMIT!

Panel 3. The reporter before a power plant and a shrunken reservoir ringed by cracked, dry lakebed.

REPORTER: BUT WHO PAYS FOR THE RUNNING?

Panel 4. Workers in hard hats beneath pylons and cooling towers; a bulldozer and a length of pipe in the dirt.

CAPTION: THE FANTASY IS DISTANT. THE PERMISSIONS ARE IMMEDIATE.

Panel 5. The reporter interviews the hard-hat worker at the plant.

WORKER: THE MACHINE IS CALLED INEVITABLE AFTER WE BUILD THE WORLD IT NEEDS.

Panel 6. Close on the reporter.

REPORTER: THE QUESTION ISN'T WHETHER THEY WANT COLLAPSE. IT'S WHETHER THEY STILL NEED TO PREVENT IT.

Hand-off: if the machine needs a world, what does it eat?

Operation: descend from ideology into infrastructure.

Panel 1 (wide). A keynote stage. A glowing network cloud floats above the audience; a smiling executive with a headset mic. The reporter watches from the front row.

EXECUTIVE: OUR INTELLIGENCE LIVES IN THE CLOUD.

Panel 2. The reporter peels back the corner of the cloud projection like a poster, revealing rows of server racks.

CAPTION: THE CLOUD HAS A FLOOR PLAN.

Panel 3. A local woman on a riverbank beside a large intake pipe running toward cooling towers.

CAPTION: IT DRINKS.

WOMAN: THEY GOT THE WATER RIGHTS BEFORE WE GOT A HEARING.

Panel 4. An open-pit mine: terraced walls, haul trucks, dust, small workers watching.

CAPTION: IT EATS.

Panel 5. An e-waste yard at dusk; people sorting cables and circuit boards by hand beside a burn pile.

CAPTION: IT DISCARDS.

Panel 6 (wide). From a ridge, the reporter surveys mine, river, power plant, pylons and data center laid out as one connected system. The hard-hat worker walks the power line below.

REPORTER: THE CLOUD HAS A MINE, A RIVER, A POWER PLANT, AND AN ADDRESS.

Hand-off: if the costs are this physical, where do they go on paper?

Page 6: The Ledger

Operation: harm travels up through an institution and becomes a green light. The reporter rides the elevator; floor numbers rise panel by panel.

Panel 1. Street level: a shuttered clinic, a family on the steps holding an eviction notice, a closed factory gate. A clerk with a clipboard counts. Elevator indicator: 1.

CAPTION: FLOOR 1: THE HARM.

Panel 2. A filing drawer labeled TRANSITION COSTS; photographs of faces slide into the folders. Indicator: 12.

CAPTION: FLOOR 12: THE CATEGORY.

Panel 3. An analyst points at a spreadsheet: TRANSITION COSTS: 4,000,000. FUTURE BENEFICIARIES: 10,000,000,000,000.

ANALYST: WE MULTIPLY BY EVERYONE WHO MIGHT EVER LIVE.

REPORTER: AND DIVIDE BY EVERYONE WHO LIVES NOW?

Panel 4. A manager pushes away a stack of reports; a screen shows a rising bar and NET POSITIVE. Indicator: 40.

CAPTION: FLOOR 40: THE SUMMARY.

MANAGER: JUST GIVE ME THE TOPLINE.

Panel 5. The penthouse: a calm executive before a wall dashboard with one green light, HUMANITY: ON TRACK.

EXECUTIVE: NOBODY IN THIS BUILDING HAS HURT ANYONE.

Panel 6. The reporter in the elevator, doors closing, looking down at the closed clinic and factory far below.

CAPTION: EVERY FLOOR DID SOMETHING SMALL AND REASONABLE.

REPORTER: NOBODY GAVE THE ORDER. THE BUILDING DID.

Hand-off: the ledger's biggest line item is workers.

Page 7: Your Replacement Is Progress

Operation: separate the capability to automate from the arranged condition of disposability. Four withdrawals, then the blame.

Panel 1. A vocational trade school, doors chained and padlocked: PROGRAM DISCONTINUED.

CAPTION: FIRST, THEY CLOSED THE TRAINING.

Panel 2. The worker, wrench in hand, at a machine cabinet marked SERVICE BY VENDOR ONLY with a no-tools symbol.

CAPTION: THEN THEY LOCKED THE REPAIRS.

Panel 3. An empty union hall, folding chairs stacked, FOR LEASE in the window.

CAPTION: THEN THEY EMPTIED THE HALL.

Panel 4. The worker at his kitchen table with a termination letter; on the TV, an anchor beside a robot arm.

CAPTION: THEN THEY BLAMED THE ROBOT.

TV: AUTOMATION IS UNSTOPPABLE!

Panel 5 (wide). At the factory fence the reporter interviews the worker, back in his hard hat. Behind the fence the robot arm sits idle while a contract technician repairs it.

WORKER: THE ROBOT COULDN'T DO MY JOB. THEY MADE SURE I COULDN'T EITHER.

Panel 6 (wide). Close on the reporter; behind her, faded, the four withdrawals return as a montage.

REPORTER: A MACHINE THAT CAN REPLACE YOU IS A CAPABILITY. A WORLD WHERE YOU'RE DISPOSABLE WAS ARRANGED.

Hand-off: the disposable have to go somewhere, and someone decides where they can't.

Page 8: The Wall with No Witness

Operation: an emergency measure outlives the emergency and loses its author. Year captions carry the time.

Panel 1 (wide). A press conference; wildfire and floodwater on screens behind an official at the podium. The reporter in the press pack.

CAPTION: YEAR ONE.

OFFICIAL: TEMPORARY MEASURES. ONLY UNTIL THE CRISIS PASSES.

Panel 2 (narrow). A checkpoint queue; cameras overhead and color-coded risk scores (23, 67, 91, 48) boxed over faces.

CAPTION: YEAR THREE. THE CRISIS PASSED. THE CAMERAS STAYED.

Panel 3 (narrow). Drones over a desert fence line, stacked above a server room.

CAPTION: YEAR SEVEN. THE SYSTEM BEGAN LEARNING FROM ITSELF.

Panel 4 (narrow). A man at a gate kiosk: DENIED. REASON: UNAVAILABLE.

CAPTION: YEAR TWELVE.

Panel 5. An appeals window: the man and the reporter at the counter, a tired clerk behind the glass.

MAN: I WAS NEVER CHARGED. I JUST CAN'T CROSS.

CLERK: THERE'S NO FILE. THERE'S A SCORE.

Panel 6 (wide). The reporter in the desert; the wall runs from concrete and watchtowers on the left to a lattice of faces, data and drones on the right.

CAPTION: THE EMERGENCY ENDED. ITS AUTHOR DISAPPEARED.

REPORTER: THE WALL IS NO LONGER ONLY CONCRETE. IT'S A DECISION WITH NO WITNESS.

Fix: the clerk's balloon tail sits between the clerk and the reporter; point it clearly at the clerk.

Hand-off: who tells people all of this is worth it?

Page 9: Gospel of Acceleration

Operation: reveal the secular theology, rhyming deliberately with the old Christian tracts: revival tent, testimony, offering.

Panel 1 (wide). A revival tent at night. Neon banner: THE EXPONENTIAL IS COMING. The preacher raises a glowing tablet over a sea of raised hands.

PREACHER: REPENT OF YOUR LINEAR THINKING!

Panel 2. An up-and-to-the-right curve glows across a cosmic screen like a stained-glass window; hands reach toward it.

CAPTION: THE PROMISE: ABUNDANCE.

Panel 3. The preacher mid-sermon, tablet in hand; behind him forest fire, smokestacks and a flooded house.

PREACHER: THE LAYOFFS ARE TRIBULATION! THE FLOODS ARE BIRTH PANGS!

Panel 4. A young founder at the pulpit, hand on heart.

FOUNDER: I WAS LOST. THEN I SCALED.

Panel 5. Close on a brass collection plate: LAND DEED, WATER RIGHTS, a check marked PUBLIC GRANT.

CAPTION: THE OFFERING.

Panel 6 (wide). The reporter outside the tent in the rain, looking back at the glow; the filled plate sits by the tent flap.

REPORTER: THEY DIDN'T ABOLISH PROVIDENCE. THEY GAVE IT A GRAPH.

Fix: the preacher's raised hand covers part of "COMING," and the banner now misreads. Reletter the sign or move the arm.

Hand-off: when the promised abundance fails, what gets sacrificed?

Operation: the conceptual culmination. A damaged ark sheds functions to stay viable; the math is sound, the priorities are the politics.

Panel 1 (wide). A starship bridge in red alarm light; crew at consoles. Main screen: POWER RESERVE 40%. SHED LOAD TO REMAIN VIABLE.

CAPTION: THE ARK IS DAMAGED.

Panel 2 (wide). A ship schematic, the stern half going red. Tags: HYDROPONICS C: NONESSENTIAL. SCHOOL: NONESSENTIAL. MEDICAL BAY 3: NONESSENTIAL.

COMPUTER: ALL DECISIONS ARE WITHIN CONSTRAINTS.

Panel 3. A dark lower deck; families with flashlights, a child with a teddy bear. A mechanic presses his palm to a sealed bulkhead.

MECHANIC: WHO DECIDED WE WERE A SUBSYSTEM?

Panel 4. The reporter reading a printout headed PRIORITY WEIGHTS: SET BY COMMAND DECK.

CAPTION: THE MATH WAS CORRECT. THE INPUTS WERE A CONSTITUTION.

Panel 5 (wide). The command deck lounge: champagne, laughter, a galaxy in the window.

COMPUTER: SYSTEM INTEGRITY PRESERVED.

Panel 6 (wide). The reporter wipes the fog from a screen. SAVE THE SYSTEM. glows red above; the cleared glass reveals the rest.

SCREEN: SAVE THE PARTS OF THE SYSTEM THAT WRITE THE PRIORITIES.

Hand-off: the command deck believes it could leave altogether.

Page 11: The Exit That Cannot Exit

Operation: demolish the escape fantasy by showing every exit plugged back into the world it abandons.

Panel 1. The fur-collar billionaire in a bunker lounge with champagne, fruit and a hydroponic wall.

BILLIONAIRE: COMPLETELY SELF-SUFFICIENT.

Panel 2. The reporter at the bunker's loading dock watching workers unload produce, medicine and supplies from a truck.

DRIVER: EVERY TUESDAY.

Panel 3. Inside a Mars dome, a colonist reaches toward a cracked seal; a console reads RESUPPLY WINDOW: 26 MONTHS.

CAPTION: THE MOST DEPENDENT CITY EVER BUILT.

COLONIST: THE PART SHIPS FROM EARTH.

Panel 4 (split). Top: a man in a VR headset lounging in a tropical paradise. Bottom: the same man slumped in a headset among server fans, while the hard-hat worker checks a breaker panel.

CAPTION: EVEN HEAVEN NEEDS COOLING.

Panel 5 (wide). Night at the bunker wall; a guard looks out at the lights of a town.

CAPTION: EVERY FORTRESS RUNS ON TRUST IT CAN'T COMMAND.

GUARD: MY FAMILY'S OUT THERE.

Panel 6 (wide). From a hilltop the reporter sees bunker, Mars-style dome and data center tethered by pipes and cables to farms, a power plant, a hospital, trucks and workers.

REPORTER: THE PRIVATE EXIT ISN'T INDEPENDENCE. IT'S DEPENDENCE WITH THE WORLD CROPPED OUT.

CAPTION: THE WORLD THEY CROPPED OUT IS THE ONLY ONE THERE IS.

Fix: panel 5's caption has a stray mark ("CAN'.T"). Reletter.

Hand-off: page 12 opens on a flooded town and the duty to repair.

Page 12: The Living World

Operation: the affirmative ending. A future isn't a place you leave for; it's one you keep habitable.

Panel 1. The reporter and a man in a striped-band fedora look through a window at a flooded town.

CAPTION: PRIVATE ESCAPE WEAKENS THE DUTY TO REPAIR.

Panel 2. A planner in shirtsleeves gestures over a model of transit lines and restored wetlands.

PLANNER: A FUTURE ISN'T AN EXIT. IT'S A PLACE WE KEEP HABITABLE.

Panel 3. Workers wiring a server cabinet beside solar panels; wind turbines and a restored river delta beyond.

CAPTION: TECHNOLOGY CAN SERVE CONTINUITY INSTEAD OF FLIGHT.

Panel 4 (four-part). A clinic, a library, a woodworking shop and a community kitchen.

CAPTION: PUBLIC CAPACITY IS SURVIVAL HELD IN COMMON.

Panel 5 (wide). Two children on shoreline rocks at sunset as whales breach offshore.

CHILD: LOOK! THEY CAME BACK!

Panel 6 (wide). The reporter, smiling, before a green coastal city with rail, a greenhouse and gardens.

REPORTER: THE REAL STRUGGLE IS SHARED CONTINUATION AGAINST SELECTIVE CONTINUATION.

CAPTION: THE FUTURE IS NOT SOMEWHERE ELSE.

CORNER TAG: RETURN TO PAGE 3

Fix: regenerate the reporter against the reference sheet.

Hand-off: back to page 3, under the surface.

Operation: the tract shows its sources, styled as a Spire mail-order page crossed with a prize-club coupon.

Layout.

- Masthead: A READER'S GUIDE TO THE BOOKS, COMICS AND ARGUMENTS BEHIND / REFERENCES & INFLUENCES. Badge: NO SECRET SOURCES! CHECK THEM YOURSELF.
- Two columns: THE ARGUMENT and FLYXION ESSAYS.
- Banner: ILLUSTRATED! DOCUMENTED! CITABLE! over CHRISTIAN TRACT COMICS, PERIOD COMICS AND EPHEMERA and a FILM REFERENCE box.
- Dashed coupon: A COMPLETE READER'S SOURCE GUIDE. Tract, format and method lines; the disclaimer ("This tract is an interpretive comic, not a transcript. Public figures are discussed in the sources but are not depicted. All billionaire characters are fictional composites."); a CHECK THE CLAIMS! form (name, library, favorite source, correction); CUT OUT! READ! DISAGREE! CHECK EVERY SOURCE!; closing line THE FUTURE IS TOO IMPORTANT TO LEAVE UNCITED.

Fixes.

- FORMAT line: change "11-PAGE COMIC TRACT" to "12-PAGE COMIC TRACT".
- "Behind Page" numbers, updated for the whales page: Value of Floods, pages 10 and 11; Manufactured Necessity, pages 5 and 6; Arranged Conditions, page 7; What Probability Forgets, page 6.
- Add the missing space in "METHOD:FICTIONAL".
- The disclaimer's "not depicted." runs into the CHECK THE CLAIMS! box; shorten the line or narrow the text block.
